This laboratory work covers basic HTML code.

Experiment 1

Design a simple food ordering website using HTML tags as:

1. Name your page as index.html.
2. Set your website title as: Welcome to my food ordering web page.
3. Add 1.jpg image on the top of web page with width 300 and height 300.
4. Include an ordered list to your web page as:

List of foods ➔ heading 2

- A. Breakfast
- B. Lunch & Diner
- C. Kid
- D. Dessert

- 4.1 For each data item of the ordered list provide a link as:

- A. By clicking on Breakfast data item, the following address should be reached.

<http://www.crackerbarrel.com/restaurant/breakfast-menu/>

- B. By clicking on Lunch & Diner data item, the following address should be reached.

<http://www.crackerbarrel.com/restaurant/lunch-and-dinner-menu/>

- C. By clicking on Kid data item, the following address should be reached. <http://www.crackerbarrel.com/restaurant/kids-menu/>
- D. By clicking on Desert data item, the following address should be reached.
<http://www.crackerbarrel.com/restaurant/dessert-menu/>

5. Draw a table to show the price as:

	weekdays	weekend
Breakfast	15€	12€
Lunch & Diner	35€	25€
Kid	10€	10€
Dessert	7€	5€

6. Consider author meta information for the website (assign your name)
7. Separate the ordered list and table using a horizontal line.
8. Type the following paragraphs:

When you sit down to enjoy our classic down-home meals, you'll taste the difference right away. Many of our recipes are made fresh daily, and we strive to give our guests ingredients of the utmost quality, including some of the following:

- We serve 100% USDA choice chuck roast
- We cook Idaho Russet baked potatoes
- We use natural Colby cheese on salads, sandwiches
- Our iced tea is always freshly brewed
- We use 100% inspected domestic ground beef
- We use only Grade A vegetables
- We use real buttermilk in our homemade biscuits

We aim to keep our prices fair and our portions hearty, making our fresh takes on traditional favorites some of the best values you'll find in any restaurant, at home or on the road. Whether you're craving meatloaf just like Mom used to make, our savory apple dumplings or the perfect breakfast at any time of day, Cracker Barrel is happy to bring you what you want, when you want it. After all, our mission statement is Pleasing People®, and we're looking to do just that. © Copyright 2014 All rights reserved.
